

Social Entrepreneurship

Have you heard of TOMS, the shoe-maker who gives shoes to people around the world who don't have them? Want to start a company that has a primary focus of giving back to people in need? Many schools are starting to create programs in Social Entrepreneurship, to foster this sort of capitalist development.

Pepperdine University	http://gsep.pepperdine.edu/masters-social-entrepreneurship-and-change/
Yale University	http://som.yale.edu/our-approach/edward-p-evans-hall/opening-events/business-society-leadership-increasingly-complex-world/social-entrepreneurship
University of Baltimore	http://www.ubalt.edu/merrick/graduate-programs/master-of-science/nmse.cfm
University of Southern California	http://www.marshall.usc.edu/msse
Stanford University	https://www.gsb.stanford.edu/programs/social-innovation/executive-program-social-entrepreneurship
American University	http://www.american.edu/sis/socialenterprise/
George Mason University	http://mais.gmu.edu/programs/la-mais-isin-soce
New York University	http://www.nyu.edu/reynolds/index.flash.html
Colorado State University	http://biz.colostate.edu/gsse/lp/pages/goodmba.aspx?gclid=CLuHj_OMn74CFeMF7AodZCYAGw
Harvard University	http://www.hbs.edu/socialenterprise/

